SUBJECT: Lecture Program on Problems of Development and the Internal Defense of Modernizing Societies

The President has directed that all departments and agencies of the government that play a role in the modernization process of developing societies provide training for all officers in combating communist-inspired problems relating to the internal defense of those societies. Studies must encompass both the history of subversive insurgency movements and the techniques now employed by the communists in less-developed countries. In addition, officers are expected to become familiar with (1) United States policy for helping emerging countries combat potential or actual insurgency, and (2) the possible contributions of all departments of the United States Government to counter-insurgency programs.

Recognizing that only a limited number of officers can be assigned to the full-time intensive training programs of the various departments and agencies, and to provide general orientation for all officer grade personnel as rapidly as possible, the Foreign Service Institute has arranged a lecture program on internal defense problems for personnel of the Department of State and of the Agency for International Development. Six lectures will comprise a complete series, and six series will be held in the West Auditorium on the following dates at 10:00 A.M.

Series I: August 9, 10, 14, 16, 21, 23.

Series II: August 28, 30, September 4, 6, 11, 13.

Series III: September 18, 20, 24, 25, October 2, 4.

Series IV: October 9, 11, 18, 19, 25, 26.

Series V: October 30, November 1, 6, 8, 13, 15.

Series VI: November 20, 23, 27, 29, December 4, 6.

All FSOs and FSRs, and ES and GS personnel of grade 11 or above now assigned to the Department and to AID/W are expected to attend the lectures. Since this involves almost 4,000 officers and since the auditorium will seat roughly 700 persons, personnel in the categories mentioned above have been assigned to one of the six series of lectures in accordance with the following plan:

The attendance schedule has been worked out in an effort to accommodate the largest number of officers within the fewest possible series of lectures. Little margin in seating capacity has been left in planning for the attendance at each series. Therefore, unless officers attend the lectures substantially in accordance with the schedule outlined above, some lectures will be greatly overcrowded and others will be given to audiences much smaller than the capacity of the auditorium.

To avoid confusion and inconvenience, admission will be by card, in accordance with the schedule. These cards, which will be valid for one series of lectures, should be obtained from the Executive Director or Chief of the Executive Staff of each bureau or office. The cards should be picked up during the three days immediately preceeding the first lecture of each series. They should be signed by the holders and presented at the entrance to the auditorium at each lecture. At the last lecture of each series, the card should be turned in to the attendants at the entrance.

While officers are requested to attend the lectures in accordance with the schedule, Executive Directors, if necessary, can make exceptions to the schedule on a strict one-for-one substitution basis.

Because of the nature of some of the material to be discussed at the lectures, admission cards are to be used only by authorized personnel. Holders of admission cards, therefore, should secure the card when it is not being used and surrender it only to the attendant at the auditorium at the last lecture of each series. If an officer cannot attend the last lecture, he should return the card to the officer who issued it.

Since a near capacity audience is expected at each lecture, all officers concerned are kindly requested to arrive in time to be seated before the lectures begin.

Inquiries regarding the lecture should be addressed to Kenneth P. Landon at FSI, extensions 4600 and 5902. Questions about the attendance plan should be referred to Loren L. Goldman or Ruth A. Lovell in PER/POD/FST, extensions 6217, 6218, and 6219.

An outline of the lecture program is attached.
